LISTENING EAR PROJECT: St. Joseph's High School are initiating a new project - The listening ear project is a new initiative where we are looking for 50 local volunteers who are able to commit to giving an hour or two a week and come into school to simply meet and listen to a young person. No special training is required, just the ability to listen. All volunteers will need to undergo a DBS check and will need to attend an initial safeguarding training session. We would develop a rota for the "Listening ears" so that there was always someone available throughout the day to simply listen. At the end of the session the 'listener' would record anything that school might be able to do to help the young person and this would be referred to the relevant staff team.
